

Planning, people, places speak up!

Whether you're renovating or building a new house, taking on a development of any size, or thinking about the shape of your community, town or city – we've been working to make life easier with changes to the planning system.

We're talking about:

- Creating great places for people – new guidelines for precinct design and medium density for example.
- Cutting red tape – quicker, faster approvals for small business in commercial and mixed-use centres, better rules for car parks, and better development approval processes.

- Making the system easier to understand and navigate – updating our planning and development laws, improving industry and community engagement and making clearer information more easily available.

What do you think should be next on the reform agenda?

Right around Western Australia, we will be asking:

- If you had to prioritise one single planning reform measure, what would it be?

- What's the biggest issue hindering the planning and development of your community?
- If you could change one thing in our planning system, what would you change and why?
- What could be done better to shape the development of communities we live in, now and in the future?

Head to the DPLH Consultation Hub now and have your say.

www.dplh.wa.gov.au/planning-reform

